David Irving says:

ON THE LABOR DAY weekend of 2004, I am holding my sixth Real History weekend at Cincinnati.

“Through expanding, I’ve held to the same fee this year. There’s also a five percent incentive for you to register before August 5.”

The weekend is marked by a series of unusual talks by carefully selected speakers known for independent and non conformist views on secret events and controversies in modern history.

We are again hosting the event at a five-star Marriott hotel near to the airport, with a fine pool, health club, and restaurants; the hotel has again given us a special daily rate, of $89 per room instead of $149 (and even the same rate for $259 suites). We also provide free airport transport.

Time is running out for the special discount offer. Registration starts at three p.m. on Friday September 3 and ends at midday on Monday September 6.

You’ll meet folks who think the same as you and enjoy a thrilling weekend of Real History. There are friendly get-togethers, including two gala dinners.

For one, we cruise on a warm end-of-summer evening up the Ohio River in a specially chartered sternwheeler, while one of our big-name speakers addresses you. For the other, we dine at a unique gourmet location and listen afterwards to one of our other famous orators, a syndicated columnist.

Among the fifteen speakers: British expert Sebastian Gorka, of the Institute for Transitional Democracy and International Security, who is also a member of the Hungarian Intelligence service, gives insights into the secret links between the present regime in Budapest and the old guard, and its gradual reversion to the bad old ways of the country’s Stalinist past.

Author David Irving, and founder of the international Real History movement, gives two talks including a final assessment of the number actually killed in the horrific wartime British and American air raids on Dresden – the topic of his first best-selling work of history in 1963.

Two popular academics who are, unusually, also gifted speakers, return this time – Professor Philip Supina to talk about medical research in the Third Reich, other than the criminal brand which has monopolised the attentions of conformist historians; and Professor Peter N Kirstein, a fearless champion of human rights and free speech, who has chosen as his theme, “Historians v. American Militarism: Resisting Censorship.” His focus will be on the challenges to revisionism and the impact of national security on free-thinking historians, citing recent cases in which American historians were punished or became the objects of public wrath because of their opposition to war and unfettered Zionism.

REVISIONISTS TOO MUST COME UNDER revisionist scrutiny. We examine the fringe controversy about the Apollo moon landings – was any, or all, of the visual material, or some of it, faked or fudged? Some say that the pictures were a hoax from start to finish, but others have explanations for the curious photographic anomalies.

Bart Winfield Sibrel, who made the movie “A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Moon,” presents this movie on the topic, and invites discussion. Perhaps the truth is, as so often, somewhere in the middle.

During lunch intervals we show movies, including recently discovered color 16mm movies from Hermann Göring’s private collection, retrieved by a GI from his home on the Obersalzberg in 1945: this film footage has many unusual scenes of Adolf Hitler and his staff 1939–1945.

In keeping with our interest in the history of Revisionist History itself, we have invited Washington DC author Michael Collins Piper to make an appraisal of the life and times of pioneer revisionist (and veteran agitator) Willis Carto, and to reveal some details of the controversial Edison Bequest which threatened to rend asunder the entire revisionist movement.

We keep details of several speakers confidential to the last moment. In addition to World War Two topics, the American attack on Iraq will again be a focus for attention. We examine curious anomalies offered by the visual evidence of the beheading of American Nick Berg.

Our resident expert on the Middle East has kept a close eye on the Arabic language newspapers since the war, and found things not reported in the US press. Are the Americans out of Iraq – or not?

THE FULL PROGRAM OF SPEAKERS will be sent only to registered delegates.

Space at some functions will be limited, so it is important to register yourself and all your guests early!

SAFETY considerations limit our number aboard the boat to 260. Appropriate refunds will be made in the event of disappointment.

Unforgettable!

INCLUDED IN THE REGISTRATION FEE are two gala dinners – one aboard a riverboat steaming sedately up the Ohio River. Listen to our fine speakers, or just enjoy the view.
